I am having a problem with jQuery, I am trying to update the value of a hyperlink with a javascript and jquery script but the value doesn't update. My html is: A BILLION BEATS I am using: $('.tune_title').click(function() { $(this).attr('title', 'foo'); }); I'm looking for foo to appear in the hyperlink and not my current title A BILLION BEATS. A: You are using title attribute of anchor tag with onclick event on span inside anchor tag. Hence the correct code should be like this. This should work. Your selector is wrong, the click event handler will add the "title" attribute to any element inside the anchor tag that matches the selector. So when your anchor tag has it's click event, it will add the "title" attribute to whatever it's children match that selector. The way you are doing it, you will have to find the span with the "title" attribute and remove it. $(this).find('span[title]').remove(); Decreased cortisol-binding globulin and increased adrenocorticotropic hormone in preterm neonates. Cortisol-binding globulin (CBG) decreases and adrenocorticotropic hormone (ACTH) increases with advancing gestational age. This study was undertaken to examine cortisol metabolism in preterm infants at varying times after birth. Cortisol levels were measured in cord blood, blood obtained within 1 hour of delivery, and blood obtained
