I use the setOnItemClickListener() in order to do that. I am using the OnLongClickListener() too so when I long press on an item, it expands the listview to get the full item. The problem is when I try to remove the item (by pressing again) it always crashes the application with the following logcat:

Automatically emulate the Clavinet V on your computer keyboard with the help of a sound engine. The Clavinet is an instrument used by many famous composers and rock musicians. It is a two-row wind instrument with a wooden body with six fingerboards. Unlike the standard keyboards, the fingerboard is curved, allowing the player to move his fingers further apart, giving more control over the range of the instrument.
