Ultra-rareMaxim "Maxice" Blumenfeld, a 21-year-old musician from Melbourne, Australia, has just become the first Google Glass Explorer to set a new Guinness World Record. Maxice is using Google Glass to record a live cover of David Bowie's Diamond Dogs (view the video below), as part of All Things Bowie Week festivities over in Melbourne. Maxim Blumenfeld with David Bowie's Diamond Dogs (up to now): When Maxice and his band, Kingswood, play live, he plays "like John Mellencamp," according to Rolling Stone, and he's a fan of both Bowie's "Moonage Daydream" and "Stay." With his hand positioned on the camera lens, Maxice lets us hear what he's seeing and feeling, while live acting out a rendition of one of Bowie's most beloved songs. We're not sure how Maxice broke the Guinness World Record, but we're curious to hear more from him about it, and how Google Glass is being incorporated into his everyday life.
